Cetaceans of the Great Bear Rainforest

Produced by Picture Cloud Film and Animation of Victoria B.C. for Pacific Wild

A beautiful short animation focusing on the whales of the Great Bear Rainforest. This visually stunning and thought-provoking animation explores the dire threats facing whales by acoustic ship pollution.

The recovery of populations of humpback whales and other species of cetaceans in the waters of the Great Bear Rainforest is a welcome event since the dark days when whale killing ships traveled our waters. But this may be short lived if oil tankers begin moving Alberta tar sands crude through the Great Bear's fragile waters. Watch on Pacific Wild site
